February 15, 1994

An error in calculating "Property Stolen/Recovered" by type, was discovered after the 1992 "Crime in Alaska" book was published and mailed. Due to the amount of recovered property reported, I decided that it was important to apprise you of the discrepancy.

Enclosed please find replacement pages 23 and 229 for the 1992 "Crime in Alaska". For ease in replacing the pages, we are providing the reverse side of each page. There were no changes to pages 24, and 230. If you have the equipment, you can completely replace these pages. If you prefer, you can simply tape pages 23 and 229 over the respective page in the book.

Please replace those reports in the 1992 Crime Reported in Alaska with the attached pages. We apologize for any inconvenience this may have caused you.

Sincerely,

Peter A. Hjellen
DP Manager

UNIFORM CRIME REPORTING PROGRAM

The Federal Bureau of Investigations (FBI) requests each state to participate in Uniform Crime Reporting (UCR). The UCR program provides statistical data to measure the trends and distribution of crime in Alaska. Information Systems, is the collection point for Alaska's statewide UCR data and is responsible for publishing the annual Uniform Crime Reporting booklet. It reflects yearly statistics for statewide crime, and crime totals broken down by police and other law enforcement agencies. A series of nine standard reports involving a range of statistics covering reported offenses, the types and value of property stolen, age, sex and race of these arrests, arson cases, homicide case details and law enforcement officers assaulted or killed during duty are collected and maintained within our system as a normal course of our business. This information is extracted and analyzed from the Alaska Public Safety Information Network (APSIN) system.

The Department of Public Safety has been coordinating and compiling data for the UCR reporting program from voluntarily participating agencies. The 1992 Crime Reported in Alaska was compiled from UCR data submitted by law enforcement agencies within Alaska. Most major cities and more than 85% of the population are represented. Monthly index data is collected from local law enforcement agencies statewide for the purpose of measuring the level of criminal activity within the state. Statistical data is also transmitted to the FBI for inclusion in its annual report, Crime in the United States. At present, the UCR data collection process is operated on semi-manual and computerized basis. Some of the data is compiled from locally generated reports while other data is submitted through APSIN. APSIN provides local data input and automated generation of statistical reports via a download of data to a micro computer.

Providing extracts of information to the micro computer environment from APSIN is becoming more viable all the time. In the past, software and hardware was not available to allow easy extracts of data files. That is not the case today. The goal of Information Systems is to provide the APSIN information in an automated format and to shorten time periods it takes to create reports. Once the information is loaded to the Micro Computer, the user is able to utilize small databases, statistical packages, graphs, spreadsheets, word processors, or other micro computer applications to work with the information.

The number of reporting agencies for each year is not always consistent due to additional agencies coming on board and some agencies dropping out of the system. when viewing the Crime index rates over various years caution needs to be exercised. We have not made any adjustments for the number of reporting agencies over time. Due to time constraints and complexity of developing some reports out of Rbase, some titles indicate Statewide, when in fact they only represent the reporting agencies. Future editions of the UCR manual will be corrected.

The crime clock should be viewed with care. Being the most aggregate representation of UCR data, it is designed to convey the annual reported crime experience by showing the relative frequency of occurrence of the Index Offenses. This mode of display should not be taken to imply a regularity in the commission of the Part I Offenses; rather, it represents the annual ratio of reported crime to fixed time intervals.

Not included are deaths caused by negligence, suicide, or accident, justifiable homicides and attempts to murder or assaults to murder, which are scored as aggravated assaults.

The collection of statistics on arson as a crime index offense began in 1979 - However 1992 annual figures are not included as Crime in the United States, also do not included arson in the crime index. However, arson information is included in the total agencies and also for each reporting agency where an arson occurred.
